A famous poet says,

“Perhaps this is the real mastery;
Always knowing how to be a student.

I think we acted childish, by growing up...”

Turgut UYAR

Umadina knows that in the passage between her mind and her heart there is a little child who will never grow up, carrying the pure essence of her own creative adventure.
Sometimes you can see it when you look at the lines of a cushion whose fabric is soft as a cloud, sometimes when you look under the lid of a chest in your room, and sometimes when you look at the handle of a drawer.
